THE Publisher of this WORK begs to request that all Persons who have not yet returned the forms requiring to be filled up for the NEW DIRECTORY, will be good enough to do so without delay, as very little information can be received after the first week in December.

Any Persons recently arrived in China, who have not received circulars from this Office, are requested to send their names and addresses for insertion.

Daily Press Office, 28th November, 1867.

DEATH.

At the Royal Hotel, Macao, on the 4th instant, Mrs. A. REED, aged 45 years.

The delivery of the Daily Press from this office commenced on Friday morning at 10.10, and the last messengers left the office at 10.35.

HONGKONG, DECEMBER 7, 1867.

IT is not a pleasant thing for a commercial community in difficulties, more or less, to hear from its Chief-Justice that its bankruptcy laws are in such a bad state that the Supreme Court fears to take a step in any direction, lest it should plunge into the mire. Into the details of the confusion which exists we have of course no intention to enter. Bankruptcy is a branch of the law which is simplest in theory, but more complicated in practice, than any other. The broad principle is as easy of comprehension as any subject can possibly be. When a man cannot pay his debts, the money he has, whatever it may be, is divided equally amongst his creditors, and the bankrupt is whitewashed quite clean, or left with the obligation of paying some further sums out of his future earnings, according to the extent of his culpability in outrunning the constable. One would say that the branch of law relating to this matter ought to be more easily administered than any other, because the uniform principle is as clear as daylight, and the cases have to be taken each on its own merits as to the details of its treatment. And yet experienced judges sometimes find themselves unable to decide justly in bankruptcy, even to the extent of satisfying themselves. "That," a lawyer will say, if he is defending the complications of the law from an elevated point of view, "is because conflicting claims become so inextricably entangled, that slow, methodical, and rigidly legal proceedings are the only means which will unravel them without inflicting injustice on somebody. Your common-sense decisions, which persons untrained in the law are always thirsting for, would, generally speaking, be nothing but one-sided decisions, with which the person deciding is only satisfied because he does not see deeply enough into the true rights of the case. Legal technicalities against which you outside ignorami rave, are the rules worked out slowly by men of great intellectual power to guard against the possible perpetration of wrong. It is the vulgarist folly to suppose they are designed to perplex, embarrass, and prolong legal proceedings."

Now, in that position there is a certain amount of strength. It is nonsense to talk about the law as a devouring monster anxious only to allure victims to their own destruction for the sake of the legal emoluments accruing therefrom. In the lower regions of the law it is no doubt true that abuses are perpetrated from the lowest possible motives. A phraseology is used which is clumsy and ill-adapted to its end in the extreme, because it is excessively verbose, and legal documents are paid for by quantity. No one solicitor is individually in fault for perpetuating the present state of things. The blame rests on the whole profession, in which an organised reform of legal phraseology amongst other things ought to be set on foot. No one individual, we suppose, likes to incur the odium amongst his brethren of starting a reform which would have an injurious effect on the bills of costs, and so the thing remains undone, to be attempted from above some day, let us hope, when great law reformers can condescend to come down from the clouds, and take up a grievance of a humble nature. Still, it is no doubt true in the main, that the law, supposing it as in the other metaphor to be a conscious creature, is not a malevolent, so much as an unfeeling monster. It does not want to destroy its victims, on the contrary, it tries to treat them fairly, but it is grandly unconscious of the sufferings they go through while under treatment, and if they die during the process it methodically proceeds to the next case entirely unmoved. The intention is good, but the effect is disastrous. This it is which the legal mind overlooks, and while aiming at what seems to it, the noblest goal, at a refinement of justice, which shall be more perfect even than the suitors themselves shall be able to perceive, inflicts so much delay and expense upon them that they are driven to the verge of madness. This is exemplified by the actual state of things around us. We are told of cases before the Supreme Court, in which the law expenses have been driven up by delay, taking time to consider, and so forth, to as much as thirty per cent. of the amount involved. A feeling of horror at the idea of being involved in proceedings before the Supreme Court, is growing up in the community. Of course it is entirely impossible to repeat in print the phrases, in which this horror is expressed, or any collateral criticism on existing arrangements, which may be added. But a court of law is overshooting the mark, when bankers refuse business rather than take any of a kind which may involve them in legal proceedings.

With reference to the late fire, a gentleman related an anecdote yesterday, that as he was walking along the Praya East, the very same evening, he saw a very large godown open and nearly full of bales. A number of coolies were at work carrying in more bales, and had formed steps of some of the bales, evidently with the intention of filling the godown to the roof. On the ends of each of these bales were placed Chinese candles exposed, flaring, and spluttering in the draught, and the narrator would undertake to say without exaggeration that there must have been at least a hundred naked lights altogether burning in the building. He remarked to a friend, who was with him at the time, that if fires were not of more frequent occurrence in Hongkong than they are at present, it was certainly more by good luck than good management.

Tyranny on Board Ship.

At the police court yesterday, the late second mate of the steam-ship Far East made application for a summons on behalf of the steward of that vessel, who it was alleged was undergoing a systematic course of ill-treatment on board at the hands of the captain. Not being able to get on shore, he had sent a written statement by the second mate, (who was fortunate enough to obtain his discharge yesterday), saying that the captain refused to allow him to leave the ship and speak to a magistrate as to the treatment he was receiving, and requesting that Capt. Jones might be summoned. The second mate had also a similar request to make on his own account, for an assault which the captain had committed on him in Labuan about an hour before the vessel left that port, and he had not been able to come on shore until he obtained his discharge yesterday. His Worship said that he could do nothing in the latter case, the assault having happened out of his jurisdiction. That was a nice question in mercantile law for the Harbour-master to settle; neither could he grant a summons to behalf of the steward to the second mate, who had not even witnessed the alleged ill-treatment. The steward must apply personally for a summons. The second mate urged that the man was not allowed to leave the ship, how could he come? His Worship said that this would tell very hardly against the captain whenever the assault was proved; he might perhaps be proceeded against for unlawful imprisonment, but he (His Worship) was sorry to say, that he could do nothing in the matter as it stood, but facilities should be granted to the steward for communicating his grievances to the police.

Police Intelligence, Dec. 6th.

BEFORE E. W. GOODLAKE, Esq.

DRUNK AND DISORDERLY.

Henry Gilray, corporal of marines on board H.M.S. Princess Charlotte, was charged with being drunk and assaulting P. C. 161, on duty at the Military Wharf, at nine o'clock last night, and was fined $3 for the offence. A similar penalty was inflicted on a Chinese boatman, who in coming into the wharf to take a fare, had refused to show a light in order that his number might be taken.

SUSPICIOUS CHARACTER.

Tong-a-sow, calling himself a public chair-coolie, but who could produce no license in proof of his assertion, was charged as being a suspicious character, having been arrested by John Ryan, private in the 73rd Regmt., hanging about the barracks yesterday evening, and being unable to give a reasonable account of himself.

Prisoner said he wanted to see a friend, one A-foo, employed as cook in the barracks.

A-foo was accordingly sent for, and on arrival, stated that he had known the prisoner for the past two or three months, and it was probable that he had come to visit him. Prisoner was therefore dismissed.

GOVERNMENT PROPERTY.

Wong-a-hing, described as a "seller of ducks," was charged with being abroad after hours without a pass, assaulting the police in the execution of their duty, and breaking one of the government muskets carried by the constable.

P. C. 276, stated that he saw prisoner and another man walking in First-street, West Point, at half-past eleven o'clock last night. He demanded their passes, upon which they both began to run; he pursued and caught prisoner, but the other man escaped. Prisoner tried hard to get away, and in the struggle both fell to the ground, and the stock of the constable's musket was broken.

The musket was produced, and a wretched-looking article it certainly was, one of those antediluvian arrangements known as a "short carbine," a converted "flint," and certainly not what would be called now-a-day's an "effective weapon." His Worship wanted to know the value of the article, and Inspector Grimes said that he believed they originally cost the government $25 each complete. It appeared, however, that the inspector, probably from natural modesty, that quality said to be so inherent in natives of the Emerald Isle, had only entered on the charge sheet $9 as the damage sustained, and the constable owned, too, that his weapon had been previously broken in the same place.

Under these circumstances, His Worship fined the prisoner fifty cents for being abroad without a pass, and ordered him to pay $5 for damage done to the musket, and he would take this opportunity of saying, that he considered the government must gain considerably by the transaction.

THE "PASSENGER ACT" AGAIN.

Captain Heinsordt, of the Siamese ship Canton, was summoned for breach of the passenger act, his vessel having been stopped this morning as she was leaving the harbour, and a number of passengers found on board.

Mr. Robert Webster, boarding officer attached to the Harbour-master's and Emigration departments, deposed to boarding the Canton shortly before seven o'clock this morning, and finding eighty-two Chinese, who owned to being passengers, and twenty who said they belonged to the crew, but their names were not found on the ship's articles. He then called Mr. Daly, inspector of water police, and requested him to take charge of the vessel.

Captain Heinsordt said he knew nothing at all about the matter, but merely acted under the orders of the supercargo. He had nothing whatever to do with the passengers or cargo, or the ship herself, except to sail her from port to port as directed. Before clearing at the Harbour-master's office the supercargo had told him that there would be no passengers, but knowing that some people were on board who had cargo he had declared twenty passengers when clearing, and this morning when leaving the harbour his vessel was stopped. The matter of passengers belonged to the supercargo, and not to him.

His Worship inflicted the usual penalty of £100, and the supercargo being called in, it was explained to him that he must pay the fine, and land all the passengers except twenty before his vessel would be allowed to leave the harbour.

Origin of the Great Fire.

CORONER'S INQUEST.

The inquest on the body of a Chinese who was injured by a stone during the blasting operations which were carried on on the 2nd inst., and who died in hospital next day, was resumed yesterday at the Magistracy, having been adjourned with a view of gaining some information as to the origin of the fire, and it will be seen below that although there can now be little doubt that the origin of the fire in the godown was the result of accident or rather gross Chinese carelessness, still some light is thrown on the extraordinary spread or jump which the fire was supposed to make from the godowns on the Praya to the Chinese houses at the back of Messrs. Gibb, Livingston's large godown, and which must hitherto have puzzled anyone who may have taken the trouble to examine the spot thoroughly. The rumour has been rife for some days, but was so mixed up with improbabilities that no attention has hitherto been paid to it.

A head-coolie employed by Messrs. Landstein and Co. was called as the first witness, but nothing whatever could be made of him. He owned to being in the godown next to that in which the fire broke out, but knew nothing at all about it. Did not know Messrs. Morgan, Lambert and Co.'s or Messrs. Schellhass' coolies, and never heard any conversation whatever about the fire since its occurrence, or never talked over the matter at all. When the fire broke out he gave the key to his master, and ran on the Praya. He knew nothing more about it.

The coroner remarked upon the utter futility of conducting an inquiry where nothing but Chinese evidence was to be obtained. It was utterly impossible to believe a word that was said. He reminded the witness that, if before a court in his own country, a certain application would be made to his body, which would make him a little more careful of the truth.

A porter or door-keeper to Messrs. Schellhass & Co. was sitting at the gate when some coolies rushed towards the harbour for water, and he saw smoke issuing from the godown. He went to the door and saw fire and smoke. A number of coolies had been employed in this godown during the day taking in cotton, and they were working until after seven o'clock. After dark there were lights in the godown, but witness did not go inside, and could not say what kind of lights were used. There was a rushlight on the Praya wall. Since the fire he had heard no one talking over the affair. Did not know any of Messrs. Morgan, Lambert and Co.'s coolies except one, who was employed in the godown, but he had not seen him for a month or more. Never saw any goods taken into Schellhass' godowns at night. Had seen cargo taken into Gibb's godowns at night, and seen Chinese candles used to light the place. Never been inside a godown at night. (Witness' answer, literally translated, was, "I have a door to watch, and have no time to go into other peoples' godowns.")

A cook in the employ of Messrs. Schellhass & Co. was then called, but if possible less was got out of him than either of the other two. He knew nothing about it. Was in the kitchen when he first heard of it. Never spoke about it since or heard anyone else do so.

A trial was then made at one of Messrs. Phillips, Moore & Co.'s boatmen. He was sitting outside the compradore's room, when he heard a cry of fire and saw smoke. Then he went to the Club to look for his master, but could not find him; so he returned, and saw the godown fall. This man's excuse for knowing nothing, was that he was busy all day, and had no time to listen to any-one's conversation.

A house-coolie of Messrs. Phillips, Moore & Co. was called. He knew nothing at all about it, neither had he heard, and he was too busy attending to his work to listen to what people said about it. Another boatman was also called, who knew, or pretended to know, just about as much, or as little, about the fire, as the rest of the witnesses. He had neither spoken to any one about it, or even given the matter a thought in his own mind. Had always been too busy.

Ching-a-hee, compradore to Messrs. Phillips, Moore & Co., was then called. He had never had any conversation with his master on the subject of the fire except that soon after it broke out he was asked where it commenced. This witness seemed highly amused at the idea of being questioned on the subject. He was not a member of any club in Hongkong, and was not aware that such things as compradores, clubs existed. Did not know Messrs. Morgan, Lambert and Co.'s compradore, and never had business with them; neither had their respective masters, nor yet with Landstein's or Schellhass'. He knew John Burd & Co.'s compradore, but he was away in Canton. Was also acquainted with Arnhold, Karberg and Co.'s compradore, and met him the other day, when they simply congratulated each other on their mutual escape. In his own mind he had always attributed the origin of the fire to carelessness on the part of coolies in the godown, either by smoking or candles. As far as his own experience went, he had generally used Chinese lamps outside godowns when working at night, and English or Chinese inside, but sometimes candles were used, because they were so convenient. They were placed in lamps and hung up. Witness had never used open lights in godowns that he had charge of, but knew it was a very common custom. He thought the fire probably the result of accident.

Ng-asbing, interpreter, had overheard people talking during the night of the fire, and saying that there was a robbery in the lane next to Tam-achoy's, and some fighting, and they (the robbers) threw two stink-pots inside a house, and that thus the fire spread at the back of Gibb's godowns. These stink-pots were thrown after the fire began in Morgan, Lambert & Co.'s godown, which he also heard was set on fire; some said by the falling of a candle and some by coolies smoking. He could not say who these men were, but believed that some people connected with an eating-house in the lane could give information about the robbery.

The compradore had also heard something about this robbery. A stranger called upon him yesterday, and witness asked him if he knew how the fire arose in the lane near Tam-a-choy's, and the stranger had said that a family living in the lane who were removing their property, did not lock the door, and he believed that thieves went in and set fire to this house. This would be done under the impression that people would remove their goods, and the thieves would thus have a rare opportunity for plunder. Witness believed that the fire broke out in two places.

The coroner considered, and the jury coincided in the opinion, that this threw a new bearing on the case altogether, and that it would be advisable to adjourn the inquiry for a week, to give the police an opportunity of following up the clue thus unexpectedly afforded. The matter was accordingly adjourned to Friday next, the 13th inst., at 2 p.m.

As a reward for the patient and persevering manner with which Mr. Stewart has conducted this inquiry, it is satisfactory to know, that there is evidence to be obtained corroborative of the statement made by the interpreter A-shing, and that a gentleman connected with the Harbour-master's department saw, from his station in the Portuguese Club, an attempt made to set fire to some houses near Tam-a-choy's lane, and reported the same unofficially to the police, and there is no doubt but that with proper care and perseverance on the part of the police, some valuable information may be gained on this all-important point. The coroner stated that he was in a position to offer a handsome reward to anyone who would be able to give any available assistance in the matter, and particularly referred to the interpreters of the Police, and persons who, if they chose to exert themselves, would be most likely to gain information on the subject. The matter has been placed in the hands of Inspector Payne, and it is to be hoped that this officer will not lose such a golden opportunity of distinguishing himself.

The Advance of Barbarism.

(From the "Saturday Review.")

It has often been asked whether it is possible for nations which have attained to a high stage of civilization to relapse into barbarism. Historical precedents are of course abundant which seem to go in the direction of affirming the question. The Four Great Empires are supposed to be cases in point. We look to the desolate shores of the Euphrates and the Nile, or muse over the ruins of Palenque and Uxmal, and mourn the instability of human greatness. The mind of Greece has fallen into a way of national life remarkable for brigandage at home and successful huxtering abroad. Spain, once the leading nation of European civilization, has descended to the lowest degree of national manners and morals. It is assumed that Christianity, education, and our political experience, to say nothing of our material wealth and prosperity, and the rapid growth of all ranks in wealth and refinement, are sufficient guarantees against debasement on a large scale. The conditions under which decay and ruin visited Oriental civilization, and what sapped the Roman Empire, cannot, it is argued, recur in Western Christendom, and under the influences of modern society. And this is quite true. But the real question is not whether society will or can fall back into ancient barbarism, but rather whether, under present influences, another sort of barbarism may not assert itself side by side with modern culture; and, if so, whether it is possible that even our civilization can stand the assault. The present law of human development—for a law is assumed—is supposed to be one in virtue of which the victory, however slow and laborious the contest between good and evil, is always and invariably on the right side. Truth and justice are sure to prevail; and an infinite and always expanding perfectibility is the law of social progress. To those who are always nervously on the look-out for a sign, there are at the present moment, here at home and close to our doors, certain things sufficiently important to study. We say "study," because they are such in number and value as perhaps to indicate a class or generic character.

Possibly it may be cynically said that towards the afternoon of the year, and in the collapse of politics, journalists turn naturally to what they call domestic and social subjects. We shall be told that, if we ask a moment's thought to our family annals here in England, it is only another form of the Big Gooseberry and Toad in the Rock season. Possibly; but sneering at the facts of current life does not annihilate them. Nor does mere sermonizing about social evils do much good. Rather the reverse, if like one of the daily London newspapers, we were to write pathetic and virtuous articles about baby-murder and the doings of Mrs. Jagger, and at the very same moment assist, a worse than questionable trade by publishing, "with the largest circulation in the world" advertisements "for ladies' accouchement," "baby-linen and other requisites found,—Mrs. B——, &c. &c."

Considerable indignation has been called out by the crimes perpetrated at Sheffield and Manchester. When we, and others, attempted, or rather were by the force of evidence driven, to show that those murders and outrages must be traced to a principle, we were sorely handled. Our writing was incendiary; we were perpetuating the war of classes. The crimes proved were those of only a few isolated Unions, and of rough, ignorant, unskilled labourers. Broadhead and Crookes, it was said, stand apart; and at any rate the Sheffield sawgrinders and the Manchester brickmakers do not constitute a general principle. It is unfortunate for this view that, as a matter of fact, Broadhead is continued in the confidence of his fellows, and Crookes remains to this hour a member of his trade fraternity. We infer, therefore, the sympathy of their fellows with these murderers from the solid fact that the connexion still subsists. And so, advancing another step, we do not find that the General Assembly and Union of Unions have done more than give formal assent to a verbal and inoperative condemnation of these atrocities. The Sheffield and Manchester local Unions have not been excommunicated. Then take another case. We have recently seen a social outbreak in the very heart of London. The Tailors' Strike has, we are told by those who defend the Trades' Union system, been conducted quite according to rule. The men declined to work except on such an advance of wages as would seriously contract trade. They struck, and managed the strike, according to custom, by the picket system. It is clear, says their apologist, that the pickets were sometimes guilty of annoyance by hissing, foul language, &c., to which it might have been added that they were also guilty of the coarsest intimidation, and in more than one instance of assault. The pickets offended not only against order, but against the public peace. The only point on which, at the moment, we insist is that this mode of concluding the strike is affirmed by Unionist authorities to be necessary. Baron Bramwell is blamed for infringing on the unwritten law of personal liberty in his anxiety to vindicate the law of public safety. And it is actually argued that the law of conspiracy ought to be so far modified as to permit in all cases such modes of conducting a strike as were, in the instance of the tailors' pickets, pronounced to be illegal. In other words, it is asked to take off the prohibition against foul language, violence, and intimidation. Or, to put it in another form, the claim is seriously urged, both in the Trades' Union apologies and in the defence of the pickets, that henceforth the law should not interfere with social crimes of a certain class.

Turning to another field of inquiry, we find in the case of the Fenian outrages a large and perhaps influential public opinion distinctly enlisted on the side of riot, disorder, and bloodshed. It is plainly held—and, which is much more important, the doctrine is carried out—that such traitors against the public peace as the Fenian leaders are above the law, and that in their case no human law ought to interfere as the avenger of blood. Men who are only possessed by strong political passions are not as ordinary criminals. To execute them when caught is denounced as a political crime of the first magnitude; and there are whole classes of society which hold it to be a sacred duty to conceal them from justice, to resist justice when engaged in their pursuit, and even to commit wholesale murder to effect their release when captured. Whether Allen is or is not guilty of the murder of the policeman Brett we shall not, of course, say; but it is quite clear that in Manchester a vast number of persons, amounting to a whole section of the population, assume him, or whoever it was who shot Brett, to be a great hero. The persons supposed to have been engaged in the attack on the Manchester police are quite equal to Harmodius and Aristogiton. Nor is this feeling confined to the rough Manchester men. Last week a foul murder, or at any rate what was intended for murder, was committed in the streets of London. The man charged with the murder is undoubtedly a Fenian, and for purposes connected with his political views, it appears that he always goes about armed with murderous weapons. Whether the man now in custody fired the fatal shot in Bloomsbury, or whether the assassination was actually more than an incident of a street brawl, is immaterial; what is material is the fact that the mere rumour of Groves being connected with Fenianism insures him a certain amount of popular sympathy and approval. In London, as in Manchester, it is found necessary to secure persons charged with murder from a popular rescue by what is called an imposing demonstration of Military or Police force. Bloodshed and murder are venial things in the face of certain other overpowering considerations—trade interests, political interests, and the like.

Yes, it will be said, but after all, and in all ages, there are murders and there are murderers. Revolution and insurrection sanctify bloodshed. Philosophers find it difficult to say when tyrannicide ceases to be a crime and becomes an heroic act. Virginius has won immortal glory; there was much to be said for Medea; Shakespeare intended to condemn Hamlet's irresolution when he hesitated and doubted about the sacred duty of stabbing his stepfather. What ends sanctify what means it would be hard, we are assured, to say. And now and then this sceptical theory towards murder is acted upon. The bloody murderer who is now under sentence of death—the Frenchman, Louis Bordier, who found it necessary to kill his concubine because he believed that Almighty God was a fiction of the Jesuits, and that he was poor and in ill health—ought not to be hung, because the fact that he entertained these views is quite enough to discharge him from responsibility. We dismiss at once the consideration about his alleged insanity, because insanity is an ambiguous term, and the jurists and the medicine men cannot agree about it. But the broad result, which is the only matter worth considering, is that, in the judgment of a vast number of people, to hold especially bloody and wicked principles, and still more to act up to those principles, is quite sufficient warrant to escape all responsibility for the results. The general practitioner who gave evidence on Bordier's trial is not, in intelligence and experience, inferior to the science men of the day, and they are persuaded that to hang such a man as Bordier would be a crime and injustice; and no doubt at the present moment the Home Secretary receives many pathetic appeals for the exercise of mercy, and it is quite possible that they may be attended to.

On the whole, then, on a broad and cursory review of the facts of the day, we are led to the disagreeable impression that reverence for the sanctity of human life is growing less and less; that, speaking almost generally, murder and violent crimes, bloodshed and outrage, and assassination in the public streets, are not looked upon with great popular horror. And further, we find that it is a commonplace of the times that we have outgrown all the old and coarser forms of punishment; that law must now depend upon its persuasive force, not upon its pains and penalties. What comes of it, then, seems to be this, that the more ferocious and violent the popular mind gets to be, the more we must decline to attempt to check it by violence and coercion. Let Hyde Park be wrecked rather than move a policeman's truncheon. To be sure we are entering upon the reign of brute-force; but Law must shrug its shoulders, and retire from the unequal and useless strife. Anyhow, it is preached, the gallows, the scaffold, and the whip do no good. The question, however, is, if these coarse and brutal arguments were only suited to a coarse and brutal condition of society, whether our society does not exhibit such coarseness and such brutality as to justify us in returning to them? Fine natures can only be touched to fine issue, it is quite true; but who shall say, after a week's newspapers, in what our fineness consists?

Coloured or Colourless Wineglasses.

The Times correspondent at the Paris Exhibition writes, on the subject of glass:—English glass is in some respects before that of all the world; but we are apt to claim for it too much pre-eminence. We have attained to certain great excellencies in it, and we like to imagine that these are the be-all and the end-all of the material. In this manufacture, indeed, our position is peculiar—it is one of rivalry with the whole Continent. There is no such difference between the finer sorts of French, Prussian, Austrian, and Italian glass as there is between these taken together and ours. The difference from one point of view depends mainly on a question of colour. The English manufacturer boasts of the colour of his glass; but by colour he means something quite different from what the Continental manufacturer means. To him glass is of perfect colour when, having no colour of its own, it produces colour by refraction in certain lights. To the Continental manufacturer coloured glass is glass with some special stain in it. Now, in England we produce very little glass that is, in the strict sense of the word, coloured; whereas on the Continent they revel in colour. What are we to think of this difference? Is the superiority altogether on our side? Praise the finer sorts of Continental glass to any one who has to do with the sale or manufacture of glass in England, he will tell you to a certainty, and perhaps with some scorn, that "that sort of thing won't go down in England." It is well to have a good opinion of ourselves, but at least let us note how we are esteemed on the Continent, and let us not forget that the Continental judges, who are perhaps quite as intelligent as we are, have decided that all the chief prizes for glass-making shall go to Continental workshops, that they have awarded us no grand prize, that they have given us no gold meal, that Messrs. Powell and Son, who are placed first on the list of English firms, are placed 19th on the list of silver medallists, and that Mr. Dobson, of whose engraved glass we have all heard (it is certainly wonderful), has obtained the lowest of the silver medals—the 29th. There is this to be said in favour of the Continental exhibitors, that they show an extraordinary variety and vivacity of work. Our English productions are admirable of their kind—nothing can be better; in that kind, indeed, they are unapproachable; but then, when one has thoroughly examined the Continental glass, and then returns to look at English show, one is half inclined to say of it what Dr. Johnson said of green fields. To those who love green fields it is no objection that one is so very like another; and neither to those who can appreciate our English glass will it appear a fault that there is a certain monotony in it.

From their point of view the English glass-makers are quite right in refusing to colour their articles. Glass is chiefly used for the reception of liquids, which are themselves beautifully coloured. Wine is pleasant not only to the taste, but also to the eye; and if we pour it into a coloured vessel—a decanter or a goblet—we make a mistake. It is, indeed, a double mistake, for we lose whatever beauty there may be in the colour of the glass not less than the beautiful colour of the wine. In our admiration for the coloured glass in and by itself, we forget the use to which it is to be turned, and that this use will defeat the ornamentation,—not merely making it void, but also making it vile. From this point of view, therefore, we in England are justified in rejecting all colour in the glass of our decanters and drinking cups. The principle which we thus lay down would, however, be more entitled to respect if we rendered it absolute. It is not easy to understand why there should be exceptions to the rule. We have an odd superstition that hock should be drunk out of a green or greenish glass; and some of our tribe even venture on pink champagne glasses. If the principle is worth anything, it should be accepted in its entirety. On the other hand one may excuse that love of variety which induces a man when he sits down to dinner and finds three or four colourless glasses before him, to wish that at least one of them might be different from the rest. But then, if we once begin to sympathize with this love of variety, we shall soon find ourselves carried into French and Continental preferences. They study colour on the Continent more than we do in England, and they have learnt thoroughly to understand the weariness to the eye of sitting down to a dinner table which is surrounded with snowy shirt fronts, which is laid with a white cloth, which is covered with white dishes, which is enriched with burnished silver, which is dotted over with glittering saltcellars that declare their intention to defy the whole table with the whiteness of their salt, which offers to your hands knives with handles of whitest ivory and blades polished like a mirror, and which reaches the height of its glory in all the icy splendour of cut and frosted glass. Save us from the glare of this intolerable whiteness, with all the white expansive shirtfronts bending over it. Now, there is nothing in man's power to produce which admits of such beautiful colour as glass; and the people of the Continent are not a little in the right in their enjoyment of its tints. The only serious objection to the use of colour in this material may be avoided in taking care either that those portions of any glass vessel which are intended for the reception of beautifully coloured liquids shall be free from colour, or else that colour in those portions shall be if not so deep as to render the vessel absolutely opaque, yet strong enough to resist the influence of confounding tints from the liquors which it may contain. The Continental glass makers do not follow out this principle very strictly; but at least they apply colour to their glass in many ways which do not interfere with it.

COMMERCIAL INTELLIGENCE.

Hongkong, Friday Evening.

There has been a good native inquiry for Bengal Drug, the market opening at $635 for Patna and $633½ for Benares. Foreigners have been buying at $633¾ and $632½ respectively, but transactions were subsequently done at $636¼ to $637½ Patna and $635 Benares to Chinese on short credit, and at these rates the market closed firm. The stock seems to have been much reduced within the last few days; it is next to impossible to bring it to a correct estimate. It cannot, however, be less than 800 to 1,000 chests of both. The Clan Alpine still keeps out. More business in Opium will be done on her arrival. The disposition at present is for a rising market in anticipation of a moderate supply. Rates, however, are already high enough for Bengal Drug compared with Malwa, and therefore should not be expected to advance much. There is no change to report in Malwa; a limited quantity has been taken up by the natives upon the usual credit, and customary allowances in weight. Quotations $685 to $690, at which rate the market is weak.

There has been considerable doing in Raw Cotton to-day, and dealers have come out quite boldly with their purchases. Transactions include about 500 bales Bengal staple at $15.00 to $17.00 and 100 bales Tientsin at $21.00, and at these rates the market is very firm. There has been a fair business doing in Produce, sales including 15,000 piculs Manila Rice at $1.41 to $1.45, 14,000 piculs Saigon Rice at $1.44 to $1.62, 100 qr.-sacks California Flour at $1.65, 500 piculs Tientsin Wheat at $2.50, 300 bags White Sugar at $6.20, 250 piculs Hides at $10.90, 10 piculs Bees' Wax at $93.00, and 200 bales Vermicelli at $3.10. There has been little doing in Shares. A small lot of Hotel have been placed at 60 per cent. discount and from 50 to 75 New Bank sold at ½ per cent. premium. A parcel of Union Dock have also been placed at 37½ per cent. discount. The Barque Alicia, advertised to be sold at auction, was put up this morning, but withdrawn, the highest bid for her being $2,800.

FRENCH MEDICINES,

PREPARED BY
GRIMAULT AND Co.,
Chemists to H. I. H. Prince Napoleon,
Paris.

These different medicines represent the most recent medical discoveries, founded on the principles of Chemistry and therapeutics. They must not be confounded with secret or quack medicines, as their names sufficiently indicate their composition; a circumstance which has caused them to be appreciated and prescribed by the faculty in the whole world. They widely differ from those numerous medicines advertised in the public papers as able to cure every possible disease, as they are applicable only to but a very few complaints. The most stringent laws exist, in France, with regard to the sale of medical preparations, and only those which have undergone an examination by the Academy of Medicine, and have been proved efficacious, either in the Hospitals or in the practice of the first medical men, are authorised by the Government. This fact must be a guarantee for the excellency of Messrs. GRIMAULT ET CIE.'s medicines.

DOCTOR LERAS'
(Doctor of Medicine)
LIQUID PHOSPHATE OF IRON.

The newest and most esteemed medicine in cases of: Chlorosis, pains in the stomach, difficult digestion, dismenorrhea, anæmia, general debility, and poorness of blood.

It is particularly recommended to regulate the functions of nature, and to all ladies of delicate constitution, as well as to persons suffering under every kind of debility whatsoever. It is the preservative of health par excellence, in all warm and relaxing climates.

No more Cod-Liver Oil.

GRIMAULT'S SYRUP OF IODIZED HORSE-RADISH.

This medicine has been administered with the utmost success in the Hospitals of Paris. It is a perfect substitute for COD LIVER OIL, and has been found most beneficial in diseases of the chest, scrofula, lymphatic disorders, green sickness, muscular atony, and loss of appetite. It regenerates the constitution in purifying the blood, it being the most powerful depurative known. It has also been applied with happy results in diseases of the skin. Further, it will be found to be of great benefit to young children subject to humours and obstruction of the glands.

Consumption Cured!

GRIMAULT'S SYRUP OF HYPOPHOSPHITE OF LIME.

This new medicine is considered to be a sovereign remedy in cases of consumption and other diseases of the lungs. It promptly removes all the most serious symptoms. The cough is relieved, night perspirations cease, and the patient is rapidly restored to health.

N.B.—Be sure to see that the signature of GRIMAULT & Co. is affixed to the bottle, as this syrup is liable to imitations.

No more Difficult or Painful Digestion.

DR. BURIN DU BUISSON'S
(Laureate of the Paris Imperial Academy of Medicine)
Digestive Lozenges.

This delicious preparation is always prescribed by the most reputed medical men in France, in cases of derangements of the digestive functions, such as:

GASTRITIS, GASTRALGIA, long and laborious digestion, wind in the stomach and bowels, emaciation, jaundice, and complaints of the liver and loins.

No more Dyspepsia, vomiting during pregnancy, or sea sickness.

GRIMAULT'S ELIXIR OF PEPSINE.

Pepsine undergoes no alteration in this delicious preparation. It will consequently be preferred to PEPSINE POWDERS or Pills. It is the digestive medicine par excellence, and is at the same time a most agreeable table liquour.

Messrs. Grimault beg to call the attention of the faculty and of the public in general to the fact that real pepsine is prepared in France alone. It is far superior to all others often extracted from the stomach of porcs.

No more Copaiba and Cubebs.

GRIMAULT'S CAPSULES AND LIQUID EXTRACT OF MATICO VEGETALIS.

Where all other Medicines have failed, these preparations will always effect a cure. These insure rapid and extraordinary cure of severe, recent, and chronic cases of private disease. They are used in the Hospitals of Paris, by the celebrated Dr. RICORD, and are found greatly superior to all hitherto known mineral remedies and Copaiba and Cubebs. The injection is used in recent, and capsules in the more chronic cases.

N.B.—All the above medical preparations are accompanied by instructions as to the manner in which they are to be taken.

GENERAL DEPOT:

In Paris.—At GRIMAULT & Co. 45, rue Richelieu.

In Hongkong.—Messrs. DE SILVA & SOUZA.
Messrs. BRAGA & Co.,
French Dispensary.

In Shanghai.—Messrs. T. LLEWELLYN & Co.,
Medical Hall.

THREE PRIZE MEDALS. PARIS 1867.

PICKLES, SAUCES, JAMS, &c.

FREE FROM ADULTERATION,
Manufactured by
CROSSE AND BLACKWELL,
Purveyors to the Queen,
SOHO SQUARE, LONDON.

CROSSE AND BLACKWELL'S well known Manufactures are obtainable from every respectable Provision Dealer in the World.

Purchasers should see that they are supplied with C. & B.'s genuine goods, and that inferior articles are not substituted for them.

To insure thorough wholesomeness, their Pickles are all prepared in Pure Malt Vinegar, boiled in Oak Vats, by means of PLATINUM STEAM COILS; and are precisely similar in quality to those supplied by them for use at HER MAJESTY'S TABLE.

C. & B. are Agents for LEA & PERRINS' CELEBRATED WORCESTERSHIRE SAUCE, and are Manufacturers of every description of Oilmen's Stores of the highest quality. [426w

Business Announcements.

LEA AND PERRINGS' celebrated WORCESTERSHIRE SAUCE declared by connoisseurs to be the only good Sauce.

Caution against Fraud. The success of this most delicious and unrivalled Condiment having caused certain dealers to apply the name of "Worcestershire Sauce" to their own inferior compounds, the Public is hereby informed that the only way to secure the genuine, is to ASK FOR LEA & PERRINS' SAUCE, and to see that their names are upon the wrapper, labels, stopper, and bottle.

Some of the foreign markets having been supplied with a spurious Worcestershire Sauce, upon the wrapper and labels of which the names of Lea and Perrins have been forged, L. and P. give notice that they have furnished their correspondents with power of attorney to take instant proceedings against Manufacturers and Vendors of such, or any other imitations by which their right may be infringed.

Ask for LEA & PERRINS' SAUCE, and see Name on Wrapper, Label, Bottle, and Stopper.

Wholesale and for Export by the Proprietors, Worcester; Crosse and Blackwell, London, &c., &c.; and by Grocers and Oilmen universally.
